Poppy Tag Day, Saturday, Nov. 9

In connection with the Tag Day in Carbon, Saturday, Nov. 9th, the following timely article should serve to keep citizens posted on the background of the Poppy Fund.

During the depression years the demand upon the Canadian Legion from destitute veteran families for assistance became terrific. The sale of poppies in these trying 30s naturally suffered but somehow the Legion carried on and many a family managed to see it through due to the Poppy Fund.

During the war years the Veteran craft plants found that they too were caught in the shortage material. Precious rubber used for our mechanized armies became unobtainable and so the windshield poppy which depended on a rubber suction centre disappeared. Now things are brightening up and this year the familiar large poppy will be found on thousands of auto windshields throughout Canada.

The stamen centre of the small poppy which was purchased exclusively in Czechoslovakia disappeared when the brittle concrete heel of the Nazis invaded that country. The Veteran switched to using green fibre, solving thereby that problem.

Lycopodium which is similar to twitch grass faded from the market and so nothing daunted the veterans switched to using magnolia leaves imported from Florida. This year a limited quantity of lycopodium is showing up again and it serves to make a more attractive looking wreath.

The metal shortage presented a grave problem because the wreaths were based on wire rings but again they came up with a specially made wooden ring and the work was carried on.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

Far Too Much For Far Too Long

The government is withholding from our prairie farmers quite large sums of money for five long years. 160 million bushels of wheat for each of two years are being sold to Britain at $1.55 but the government is paying our prairie farmers on a basis of $1.35 only. This means the government is withholding from farmers 20 cents a bushel for five years. 160 million bushels to Britain however, is not much more than half the wheat that has to be sold to all other countries, and at a price far in excess of $1.55. The price today for this other so-called "free wheat" is $2.19 a bushel. This means that or about one half of our wheat the government is also withholding from farmers around 84 cents a bushel, again for five years. This, it seems to me, is unnecessary. All this money would be far better in the hands of our farmers than in the hands of the Dominion Treasury for five years. In short the government is withholding from our prairie farmers, in cash, far too much for far too long.

The colonel spotted a cigarette butt on the barracks floor during inspection and bellowed at a rookie. Is that yours?

Not at all, sir, came the polite answer, you saw it first.

What Each Of Us Does

"Labels such as State, industry, nationalization in themselves mean little," said Herbert Morrison in a recent talk. "Whether these things work, whether they give us what we all so firmly desire, all depends on the sum of what each of us does."

On every hand statesmen, and the ordinary man, are seeing that new administrations, new systems and new deals can do little good unless there is some new attitude or effort on the part of individual people. With such growing recognition of our real and basic need, it is surprising that there is still so much effort spent on plans and systems and so little on attitude and spirit. That so much importance is publicly attached to "what each of us does" while privately we each do so little about it.

What can we do? A baker said, "I can begin with my own home, my own bakery and my own industry. I can try to make them models of what homes and bakeries and industry may be in a democracy. Free from blind selfishness on one hand and blind bitterness on the other. Free from personal dictatorship either at the business conference table or the family breakfast table. Free from fear of either my competitors or customers. Free to do what's right without reference to either pride or profits."

The butcher, the candlestick maker and everybody else are just as free. These are things each one of us can do. You do not have to be a baker to form this kind of leaven in the lump of present-day society.

A colored man doing a hauling job was told he couldn't get his money until he submitted a statement. After much mediation he evolved the following bill: Three comes and three goes at four bits a went, $3.00

Donald Gordon Outlines Price Control Problems

Price control and the problem of guiding Canada back to normal during the immediate post war period were dealt with on Friday night by Donald Gordon in the first of a series of five radio addresses over the CBC network.

"I do not intend to argue a case either for or against the continuance of existing control" Mr. Gordon declared. "I only intend to explain the circumstances," he added. He considered it his duty to make this public report. "Whatever view one may hold about present controls, I think everyone will agree that we should know what we are doing," he said.

Mr. Gordon dealt with the beginning and growth of wartime controls, of needed subsidies and relaxation of controls in certain fields. Speaking of the present he said there is a lot of confusion, a lot of disagreement about price controls. He pointed to some of the problems. "One of the big difficulties is that a great many people want to get rid of the particular control which restricts their freedom to raise prices, or do what they want to do with goods and services which they provide, but at the same time keep on those controls which protect their supply and their costs," Mr. Gordon pointed out.

"So we find labor insisting upon higher wages but demanding steady prices, the farmer asking for higher prices but insisting that the cost of his supplies be held. And we find the manufacturer contending the prices of his product should be freed of control but objecting to the raising costs of his labor and materials. Business is pressing for more freedom to raise prices cannot help but be aware of the strong demand and the money that could be made in an uncontrolled market."

"However much we may regret it, rigid stability of prices is beyond achievement and this is a fact which we should face squarely."

"Subsidies were to meet an emergency and their reduction and removal usually means higher prices. The important point is to decide in each case what conditions are appropriate for their removal."

"Related to the subsidy question . . . another reason why a hard and fast line is no longer workable . . . prices in other countries have been going up and usually going up much more than in Canada."

"The only choice open to us is between controlled re-adjustment and uncontrolled re-adjustment. Whichever course you choose, there are difficulties and problems."

"In considering the removal of controls we must face the consequence and weigh the advantages against the disadvantages. You can have it one way or the other, but you cannot have it both ways. It is human nature to want it both ways."

Two recruits met in the canteen. Where do you come from one asked.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS

France's requirements for the 1946-47 season are estimated at some 14,500,000 bushels of wheat or flour; Bulgaria's maize outturn is expected to be very small and will fall below domestic requirements. The U.S. department of agriculture purchased some 19,504,411 bushels of wheat from September 9th to October 11th.

The revised official estimate of the French wheat crops now places production at 243,520,000 bushels, an increase of some 24 million bushels over previous figures. The Union of South Africa's wheat acreage is reported to be the largest on record. Turkey's wheat production for this year is reported to be the greatest on record.

B. of M. Wins Award

First Canadian bank to gain the distinction, the Bank of Montreal has won the Socrates high award of the year for its advertising during the last 12 months.

The award is made by "Bank Ad-views", a New York monthly publication of financial advertising covering banks and trust companies throughout North America, which number more than 15,000. During the year several of the B. of M.'s advertisements won Socrates' monthly awards as "The Best Ad of the Month", while others received "honorable mention" resulting in the highest annual score among the banks on both sides of the border.

"Bank Ad-views" bases its awards on reviews of the daily papers of every metropolitan centre as well as several hundred smaller cities. In addition the publication keeps in touch with leading bank and advertising men throughout the United States and Canada. A board of 12 advertising executives makes the final decision on winners.

Air Mail Rates Reduced

Reduced postage on air mail from Canada to countries in every quarter of the globe became effective on November 1.

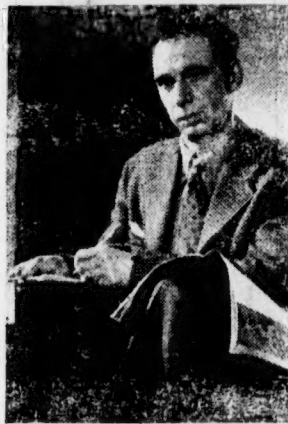

The lowering of postage will give an added impetus to Canadian business and will also be advantageous to private citizens mailing by air to overseas.

The reduction grows out of the recent Congress of the Postal Union of the Americas and Spain at Rio de Janeiro when the question of reduced air mail charges was to the fore.

It is the policy of the Canadian Post Office Department to pass on to the Canadian public any benefits of this kind and the reduction of the present half ounce air mail weight unit to one quarter of an ounce has enabled the department to introduce more attractive rates.

The new rates will at least cut in half the present cost of air mail letters to Europe, Africa, Australia, New Zealand and many countries in Asia.

To illustrate the material cut in charges that the public now enjoys it will be possible to send a normal letter to the United Kingdom and Europe for only 15c compared to the 30c per half ounce charge now in force.
